Bowled Over by Cereal

Invented as a health food in the 1800s, cereal is now so popular, National Cereal Day is celebrated each year on March 7.

About 2.7 billion boxes of cereal are sold in the U.S. every year.

Cheerios were called Cheerioats when they debuted in 1941. The name changed four years later.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes was the first cereal to offer a prize, a picture book, in the early 1900s.

The first athlete to appear on a Wheaties box was baseball great Lou Gehrig in 1934.

Grape-Nuts were included in some U.S. military rations during World War II.

The marshmallows in Lucky Charms have a name; they're called marbits.
